

CORPORATE FINANCE

Value-determining and future-oriented. Corporate valuation at MSW.

The occasions for corporate valuations are manifold. They can arise in connection with entrepreneurial initiatives (sale of companies, mergers, contributions in kind, management buy-outs, etc.), for reasons of external accounting, company law or other legal regulations or contractual agreements. The decisive factor in determining value is transparency as to which parameters are actually relevant to value and in what way they influence value. The enterprise value is generally determined as the future success value. Common valuation methods include the capitalised earnings value method and the discounted cash flow method. MSW's specialists help to understand this complex matter and achieve optimised results on an individual basis. We are guided by the IDW standard for company valuations (IDW S 1).
